

In its memorandum in response to plaintiffs' summary judgment motion, Pioneer also specifically admits that the compression at the Ulysses Booster Station is needed to produce gas: "[A]bsent the Ulysses Booster Stations, the wells in the Larrabee Gathering System would only have produced if they had not met the 100 psi inlet of the KPL Compression Station."

The word "not" was inadvertently inserted into the passage quoted from Pioneer's responsive brief. The text should be corrected to read as follows:

In its memorandum in response to plaintiffs' summary judgment motion, Pioneer also specifically admits that the compression at the Ulysses Booster Station is needed to produce gas: "[A]bsent the Ulysses Booster Stations, the wells in the Larrabee Gathering System would only have produced if they had met the 100 psi inlet of the KPL Compression Station."

(2) AT PAGE 4:

Plaintiffs' Reply Brief incorrectly states, at the beginning of the first full paragraph:

It is particularly significant that Pioneer has not retracted its original assertion with regard to the KP&L compressor fuel.

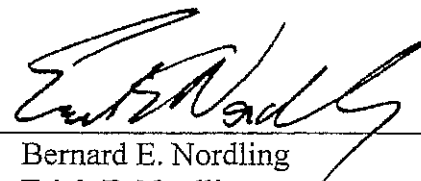

The word "not" was incorrectly used instead of the word "now." The text should read as follows:

It is particularly significant that Pioneer has now retracted its original assertion with regard to the KP&L compressor fuel.

Plaintiffs apologize for any inconvenience which these errors may have caused the Court or Pioneer's counsel.

Respectfully submitted,

By
